

SCÉAL ÉILE

THE NEWSLETTER OF THE COOLEY-KEEGAN BRANCH OF COMHALTAS CEOLTÓIRÍ ÉIREANN

⌘ FROM THE CHAIRMAN ⌘

Dear friends and members,

If each Sceal Eile had a theme, I suppose this would be the “singing” issue! While many of us in the branch are avid dancers, others are more interested in the music, or the social aspects, its good to see that there is a resurgence of interested people in Irish songs, as well. This is a part of Irish culture that many Americans are at least in part familiar with, even if some of the more famous songs are not necessarily Irish in origin.

Sing-alongs have been a popular feature of our children’s ceilis for a few years now, but we have also been holding the “Song and Storytelling” evenings once a month now for nearly three years. If you’ve never been able to attend one of these (or perhaps have not been aware of what you were missing!), Michael Murphy provides a great description in the following pages. Note that the location of these evenings “travels” all over the Bay Area, hosted at the homes of some of the regular participants, so its likely that on some occasions it will be relatively close to your home... and you needn’t be a polished singer to join in.

Another tradition for singing is the traditional sean-nós (unaccompanied) style, usually in the Irish language. I’d like to congratulate Nikki Ragsdale, our branch’s Treoraí na Gaeilge and organizer of all our Irish language events, on the recent release of her very own CD of songs in Irish! This is a major project to carry out, and will no doubt provide a great resource for both new singers interested in learning the style, and help expand the repertoire of others who might have a song or two already under their belt. The timing is also excellent, in that Nikki will be teaching both morning and afternoon workshops (October 23rd) on singing in Irish at our big West Region convention, so now is the perfect time, if you’ve been meaning to give it a try.

Which naturally reminds me: if you haven’t yet signed up for your choices at the convention, now is the time to do so! We need to allocate space and finish up the planning based on the registrations we receive, so if you are thinking you’ll be coming to take a workshop or two, enjoy the fine Saturday night ceili, and/or join us for the fabulous Sunday night concert featuring John Whelan – send us your registration as soon as possible!

If that isn’t sufficient incentive, please note that we will also be selecting one of the early registrations at random – and waiving the entire fee for that lucky person’s package!

Slán,
Michael R.

⌘ Song & Storytelling ⌘
Special Report

After a two month recess and a few months before that of fewer-than-expected turnouts, the bonny balladeers, reciters, and seanactais [check spelling] (or storytellers) of the Cooley-Keegan Branch of Comhaltas returned to full strength numbering about 11 on September 3. More noticeably, everybody sang a collection of about 20 songs or so with an energy and enthusiasm that a proper 2-month break warrants, but at the same time, it sounded as if we never needed a break at all.

Our usual standards were spot-on. The new and infrequently sung songs were handled with grace and flair. Everybody made a good effort, which is the usual case with this hearty bunch of harmonizers. A good mixture of old songs, such as "Fields of Athenry," "Wild Mountain Thyme," and "Spanish Lady" with quirky and different ditties such as "Rose of Aranmoor," "Lowlands of Holland," (introduced by our brave new "choral director", Deirdre McNamara) and an always anticipated shanty from one of our resident ramblers, Michael Jones, was the order (and comedic chaos) of this fun evening.

A new blend of guests with the usual variety of vocal virtuosos sparked an experience that is never to be forgotten by those who attend this monthly meeting of melodies. Dierdre Corrigan even brought her flute and delighted us with some delicious tunes while we dived and dipped into some delectable delicacies and refreshments provided by our gracious hosts, Maureen and Dan Clarke.

Dan, by the way, enthralled us, using a cliffhanger style in relating a tale of kings, queens, deception, magic, revenge, romance, competition, humorous twists and a decapitation, which he very considerably left until the very end of his story - "Go mbeannaí Dia duit". Seriously, Dan Clarke has been researching rare, ancient (going back to 8th Century) Celtic tales for many years, and his generosity in sharing them with us should be appreciated by all who show an interest in the art of storytelling.

There you have it; a few snippets of what goes on at a Song and Storytelling Seisiún on the first Friday of each month. Intrigued? Are you now having a burning desire to take out your songbooks and dust them off, and sing that song that you haven't heard in ages? Can you think of that song that is on the tip of your tongue but cannot fully remember it? Perhaps it will come back to you as you sing it with us? Is there a song in the Irish/Celtic tradition that you composed yourself and you need a test audience to bounce it off of? Are you an aspiring storyteller and want to keep Dan Clarke company in our seisiúns (we can use more storytellers)? Are you a poet, a reciter? A musician desiring to hone your accompaniment skills? A lyricist of the Irish language? Any and all of the above are encouraged to come and try us out for an evening of songs, stories, poems, friendship and laughter that is very much embedded in the Cooley-Keegan and Irish traditions. Síne.

⌘ New Sean-Nós CD ⌘

A new Sean-Nós CD is available from Nikki Ragsdale, Treoraí na Gaeilge for Cooley-Keegan branch and the West Region, and organizer of the annual Deireadh Seachtaine Gaeltachta (Irish Language immersion weekend).

"Seansaol na hAislinge" (Old Life of the Dream) features Nikki's lovely interpretations of unaccompanied traditional songs in Irish, many of them rarely-heard gems. Monterey/Santa Cruz CCE branch members Janet Herman, Galt Barber and Mike Long (Dance Around Molly) also contribute a few instrumental tracks and back-up vocals.

The CD is available from cdbaby.com
